Saving the Founder's Home

A film by Louise Abbott

A small town, a historic house slated for demolition, and a group of citizens determined to defy the odds: Saving the Founder's Home chronicles the painstaking efforts that were made to move and restore the squared-log cabin that Paul Holland Knowlton—the founding father of Knowlton—occupied two hundred years ago.

"Abbott's charming documentary highlights the one-year journey to save the founder's home. It incorporates the heartfelt commentaries of many who participated ... and projects the joyful pride that comes from being part of protecting an important slice of local history."
